

FREQUENCY EXCHANGE'S NIKKI FEATURED in SUPERHUMAN 2: REBIRTH, BRINGING its TECHNOLOGY to a GLOBAL AUDIENCE

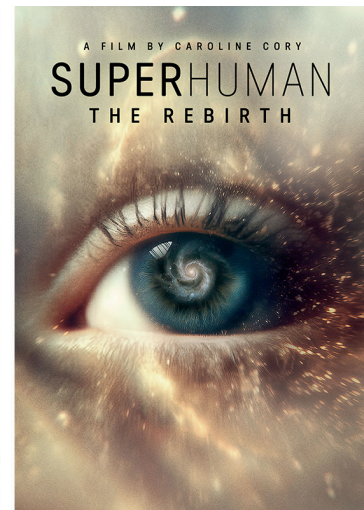

For Immediate Release

Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada – August 18, 2026 – Frequency Exchange Corp. (TSXV: FREQ) (OTCQB: FRECF) (FSE: YC6) (“Frequency Exchange” or the “Company”) is pleased to announce that NIKKI, its flagship frequency-based wellness platform and wearable delivery device, will be prominently featured in the documentary Superhuman 2: Rebirth, scheduled for release in September/October 2026.

Produced by award-winning filmmaker Caroline Cory, Superhuman2.com is a documentary focused on consciousness, frequencies, human potential and emerging wellness technologies. It features internationally recognized voices including Bruce Lipton, Gregg Braden, Michael Beckwith, Lynn McTaggart and Dr. Leigh Erin Connealy.

Among the technologies showcased throughout the documentary, NIKKI is featured as an example of next-generation wearable wellness technology.

NIKKI is a wearable wellness device and platform designed to deliver proprietary frequency-based wellness programs targeting areas such as sleep, stress, energy, recovery and overall vitality. The platform also features additional exclusive frequency-based programs showcased in Superhuman 2: Rebirth.

GLOBAL AUDIENCE AND DISTRIBUTION PRECEDENT

The original Superhuman: The Invisible Made Visible documentary established a substantial international distribution footprint, with worldwide rights handled by 1091 Pictures and distribution across Digital HD, Cable VOD and DVD, followed by availability on major streaming platforms including Gaia, Amazon Prime Video, Apple TV and other digital services. The production has also been distributed with subtitles in French, Dutch, German, Portuguese, Japanese, Russian and Spanish.

Building on the international distribution precedent established by the original Superhuman documentary, Superhuman 2: Rebirth is expected to introduce international audiences to the growing field of frequency-based wellness. For Frequency Exchange, this represents an excellent opportunity to increase international awareness of the NIKKI device and platform as the Company advances commercialization.

“We evaluated numerous technologies during the production of Superhuman 2: Rebirth, and NIKKI stood out as one of the most compelling innovations we encountered,” said Caroline Cory, Executive Producer and Director of Superhuman 2: Rebirth. “Its unique approach to delivering wellness frequencies through an elegant wearable platform aligns perfectly with the educational message of this film. I believe audiences around the world will be fascinated by what NIKKI represents.”

Stephen Davis, CEO of Frequency Exchange, commented “This is an important milestone for our Company. To have NIKKI selected as one of the featured technologies in a documentary alongside many of the world’s leading voices in consciousness, health and human performance is a meaningful validation of the technology and our commercialization strategy. The September/October 2026 release coincides with our expanding commercial rollout, including recent distribution initiatives in the United States, the Middle East, and other international markets. To meet potential demand for our featured NIKKI device and platform we are building inventory and are in the process of finalizing additional distribution agreements.”
